OUR EXPERTISE

Why use a monitor stand or laptop riser?

These days, more and more people use several screens to accomplish their tasks, so you need to know whether your working position is suitable and ergonomic. Are you sitting up straight? Do you feel that your neck is in its natural, relaxed position? When you look at your screen, do you keep your gaze straight, without looking up or down? If the answer to these simple questions is no, it's high time you bought yourself a laptop stand with a screen riser or even a screen support arm. These will enable you to align your eyes correctly with the top of your screen and prevent RSI by reducing neck strain.
